Officials hoping for calm holiday

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Local law enforcement agencies reported a more quiet than normal, Christmas holiday.

State Highway Patrolman Mike Cox said, "The traffic was very light on the highways, everyone was driving 55 or less and that only one speeding ticket was written."

Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner said his office had fewer than normal complaints.

"A firing of a shotgun into a building on a dead end street off White's Road Sunday night is under investigation by my office and is the only thing we have had," Ladner commented.

Sheriff Deputies Paul Bernard, Glen Strong, Willie Lee and James Holden answered the call Sunday night with Sheriff Ladner and Sheriff-elect Ronnie Peterson investigating on Monday.

Sheriff Ladner said Wednesday afternoon that no complaints have been filed by anyone.

Bay St. Louis Chief of Police Douglas Williams said that in Bay St. Louis everything was "nice and quiet" for the Christmas Holidays.

Waveland had several fender-benders on Christmas Eve and Christmas day, according to Investigator Poochy Tartavouille, adding it was "super quiet."

All enforcement agencies report they are keeping their fingers crossed for the New Year's long weekend and hope it will be as calm as the Christmas weekend.

Tartavouille said Christmas being in the middle of the week may have made it quieter than normal.

Highway Patrolman Cox figured the closing of many service stations probably was the reason for so few cars on the highways.

Local fire departments also reported a quiet holiday with no calls. One fireman said they always worry about the Christmas Tree fires during the holidays.

James Finch, commissioner of Public Safety, said, "If someone wants to give their law enforcement officers, who are responsible for protecting lives and property, a holiday remembrance, please make it a gift of life."

"Words cannot express the sadness felt when the same people who enforce the laws must knock on a door and tell a family that their close relative has been killed in an automobile accident. Expressions of sympathy do not soothe the pain and shock that must be endured, especially when the victim's body was badly mutilated or nearly burned beyond recognition in the accident," Finch explained.

The commissioner said, "My intentions are not to mar the holiday with unappealing words but what I am saying is real, true and should be remembered."

"If you do not believe me, just ask the mother of a child who was killed in a traffic accident," "She could probably get the attention of motorists who feel that their importance on the highway far exceeds obeying the law."

"Or ask the husband whose wife's casket could not be opened because she was so badly torn the funeral home could not make her appearance appealing enough to show her mourners," he said.

"The New Year's holiday last year was 78-hours long and each produced 10 deaths."

"It seems that we, as a society, have become apathetic to murder on the highways. It's almost as though a high fatality count is the rule instead of the exception."

Suspect bound over to January Grand Jury

Bay St. Louis resident Charles Leroy Cospelich was bound over to the Hancock County Grand Jury, in a hearing before Judge Joseph Benvenuti Thursday in connection with a recent armed robbery of Fahey Drug Company.

A second suspect in the armed robbery is still being sought, according to Bay St. Louis Police Chief Douglas Williams Wednesday.

The robbery occurred Monday, Dec. 10 when according to police, "Two men with stockings over their faces were described as white males, were both armed, apparently in their 20's, one carrying a 30-30 rifle and the other a large revolver," took cash and medicine from the drug store.

Bay St. Louis police investigator Jim Mallini is in charge of the case.

Choral members present cantata

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Members from several local church choirs presented a Christmas cantata titled "Love Transcending" at Main Street United Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis Sunday night.

"The cantata culminated several weeks of practice by members from several church choirs in the area," according to Olive McKenna co-director.

An audience of some 150 people heard a cantata based on events leading to the birth of Christ (the Christmas story) narrated by Rev. Louis Lohan, administrator of Our Lady of the Gulf Church, followed by a sing-a-long featuring several Christmas carols.

The choir's prelude and processional song was "What Child Is This".

Kim Delcuze and Amy Britt served as acolytes and lit an advent candelabra during the prelude.

Rev. Willis Britt of Main Street United Methodist Church offered the welcome address, invocation and benediction.

The first half of the cantata was directed by Mary Howard with Olive McKenna accompanying on piano and Carolyn Crull on organ.

During a recess meeting of the Hancock County School Board 9 a.m. Saturday the board directed their attorney to write a letter to the state attorney general.

"We are asking an opinion as to whether school board members could continue to be elected county-at-large if the county beats were equalized," according to School Superintendent Terry Randolph.

The board had decided to ask for the attorney general's decision at another recess meeting Dec. 16.

In other business the board: —Approved payment to Patsy Smith $204 for gravel and topsoil delivered to Hancock County North Central High School; —Approved a trip by Randolph and Superintendent-elect Billy Sills to meet with Dr. Frank Lovell, director of the Education and Finance Committee, in Jackson to make a final determination on $30,400 in state building funds for the new US-90 high school;

—Continued a student-teacher hearing until Jan. 7 in relation to a discipline matter;

—Received a letter from Woodrow L. Marshall, director of the Mississippi High School Activities Association, Inc. informing the board that a student was not eligible to participate in high school athletics in the 1979-80 school year.

Hancock unemployment ranks ninth statewide

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Hancock County reported the ninth highest unemployment rate out of Mississippi's 82 counties for November.

Figures released by the Mississippi State Employment Service reveal Hancock County's 7.8 percent unemployment rate compared to an overall state average of 5.9 percent and a national average of 5.8 percent.

"There have been layoffs at Port Bienville and an increase in Louisiana claimants—local residents who commute to the New Orleans metropolitan area consisting of Orleans and St. Tammany Parishes," according to John Howie, Mississippi State Employment Service labor market analyst for Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone Counties.

"There is a lack of manufacturing work orders found locally, statewide and nationally right now," Howie says.

The 7.8 percent Employment Service figure, based on place of residence, show 510 Hancock County residents unemployed in November out of a total work force of 6,510.

Since October the unemployment rate increased eight-tenths of a percentage point even with a loss of 40 people from the available county work force.

"Hopefully, this is a temporary situation," Howie added.

During the same period last year Hancock County had a lower unemployment rate of 7.4 percent (540 people) with a higher available work force of 7,320 people.

Bay Council delays Port appointment

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis Council tabled an appointment to the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission pending further discussion at a recess meeting tonight.

Council President Pete Benvenuti said, "My interpretation of the law is that Bay St. Louis and Waveland's appointment to the Port and Harbor Commission must be approved by the governor."

The mayor appoints the personnel, and the council must approve, and then the governor. Since the governor doesn't take office until Jan. 22, let's table our appointment until further discussion."

Council members and Mayor Larry Bennett were in agreement with the council president's recommendation.

W.A. (Fred) Curet currently serves as Bay St. Louis' appointee on the Port and Harbor Commission.

Council approved two dock items for payment held earlier for more information, the purchase of culverts and asphalt.

Council received a letter giving a status report from Advanced Design Incorporated (ADI) on several projects from ADI president Dr. Michael Smith.

The letter reports that Hartco Services, Inc. has completed all contract work to the telemetry control systems for the North Bay and Washington Street elevated tanks; and the Leonard, St. Charles and Easterbrook Street wells.

Activation of the telemetry system on the Washington St. well is awaiting the painting of the exterior of the tank.

A delivery of a Utility Assessment Report will be available prior to Jan. 1 according to Dr. Smith.

The engineer reports his firm is waiting for "as-built" information from the Utility Department to do the key valve survey for the gas system.

has been having with a computer in the billing department. Bennett said the department has gotten a week behind and are having problems catching up.

Council requested an opinion from James Chiniche, engineer, on the study of plans for an extension of a water line on Union Street.

The owner of a building complex is to pay for the materials used in the water line construction.

Kelly McQueen, city clerk reported his office has received a $3,000 check from the developer for the water line installation.

Council felt that it would be necessary to have a contract drawn up by Board Attorney Joseph Gex between the developer and city.

Council requested Chiniche to check the plans and specification for both the water and sewer lines, and if it took over three hours to complete the work to notify them.

Explanation eyed for strange noises

BY JOE PILET

This story is dedicated to the young people who love the wild creatures of our area. As you already know, there are many wild animals living in Hancock County.

There are shy rabbits, and rabbits not-so-shy. There are grey squirrels, too!

Beavers swim in our bayous, and frogs live in the bogs. The frogs sing by rote and they sing in rounds.

Little frogs sing "ankle deep, ankle deep, ankle deep" while middle-sized frogs sing "knee deep, knee deep, knee deep" and young adult frogs sing "belly deep, belly deep, belly deep" and the big bull frogs come in on the last round with "too late to leap—too late to leap—too late to leap."

These frogs have organized a Glee Club and practice often. Have you heard them? They call themselves "Madrigals" and go hopping around singing love songs from moon up till sun up.

Many turtles live in the bayous. Many years ago a tribe of Choctaw Indians lived in Hancock County. They called the waters "bayuk," which in their language means "little streams."

Turtles are clever. They are known as amphibious because they can live in water and also on land. It is real fun to watch turtles.

Sometimes they sink their bodies in the water and just have their heads above the water line. Flies and other insects see the turtle's head. It looks to them like a floating stick. When they light on this "stick" to rest the turtle quick as a flash sends out a long, sticky tongue and catches the insect for its dinner.

Yes, turtles are very clever.

Sometimes they rub their noses in the sort of food flies like. Then they sit very still just waiting for a fly to light so they can catch their dinner. This is probably more fun than fishing. But, like fishing, it is a waiting game and requires patience.

Some of the other wild animals living in our area include the racoon. He is a real charmer. He wears a little black mask over his eyes and looks for all the world like he is getting ready for a Carnival Ball.

He wears rings on his tail! He is very playful, and sometimes "takes things" and forgets to bring them back. He takes ears of corn from the stalks, eggs from the hens' nests, and vegetables from the garden.

He also raids the compost piles. But he is so cute until people forgive him and just say: "Coons will be coons."

Then there is the O'possum. I suppose these animals came from Ireland because of the O' before their name.

However, here in Hancock County we shorten the name to just plain possum.

Curse banishes buzzards

BY JOE PILET

There is an ancient legend which explains why no buzzards encircle Cat Island. It seems that d'Iberville with his two brothers, Bienville and Sauville, sighted an island about eight miles to the southeast of Bay St. Louis.

A disciple of Ignatius Loyola, Ill and waiting for death, lay on the sandy shore as one of d'Iberville's frigates neared.

A swarm of vultures were circling above the head of the cleric. Not wishing his body to be carried for buzzards, the Jesuit stretched his withering hands skyward and cursed the island.

It is said that to this day vultures are not to be seen encircling this island.

Cat Island is a misnomer, for the explorers saw coons—not cats!

This superstition appeared in 1915 in the official City Directory of Bay St. Louis, and we are indebted to Gayle Thames for making this account available.

REALTY ASSOCIATE—Mrs. Pauline Wesselman is an associate with the Will H. exception," the commissioner elaborated.

"This year New Year's will be a 102-hour period which will give us more time to celebrate and probably more highway deaths," Finch noted.

"Giving the fatality count does not impress the people who measure things in dollars and cents so for those people, there was an economic loss of $415,090 in the 191 accidents that took place on roads and highways under the jurisdiction of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol during the last Christmas and New Year's celebrations," he stated.

Finch continued, "Following too close and failure to yield the right-of-way, respectively, were the leading causes of those 191 accidents. These facts should denote the courtesy that our fellow motorists display to one another."

"M.C. Pardue, chief of the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, and I, have cancelled all annual leave for our officers throughout the State so they will be on the highways to protect concerned and caring motorists from drunk or abusive drivers," Finch added.

They cannot be everywhere at all times, so each driver has a responsibility to obey the law, to demonstrate courtesy behind the wheel and to put forth every effort not to be, and not be responsible for, the next fatality in our State."

New Year's will be observed beginning on Friday, Dec. 28 at 6 p.m. until Tuesday, Jan. 1 at midnight.

River Junior College Board of Trustees at a regular December meeting in Poplarville.

Mitchell replaces J.Q. Frierson, Poplarville businessman, as chairman of the PRC governing board.

Everette Eaton, Sumrall pharmacist was named vice-president to replace Mac Avery, superintendent of education for Lamar County.

Other board actions include hiring of a marketing instructor, vocational-technical director and approval of November claim docket.

Richard Clayton, counselor at the PRJC Lamar County Vocational-Technical Center in Purvis, was hired as director of that PRC branch.

Clayton has been a part of the Purvis staff since January and is replacing Dr. James Sones, who was recently hired as coordinator of all Pearl River Voc-Tech programs and centers.

Beverly Jean Williams was hired to replace D.R. Davis as marketing and distributive education instructor.

Williams has a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi and will complete a master's requirements in marketing education at the end of the fall semester at USM.

Davis was recently elected Chancery Clerk of Pearl River County and he will assume those duties in early January.

Dr. Marvin R. White, PRC president, said the board approved his motion to hire Dr. Robert Sutherland, an associate professor of higher education and administration at USM, as consultant to aid school administrators in developing means of evaluating faculty members.

Sutherland will be working with Enoch Seals, academic dean; and Sones, as well as faculty committees in the formulation of faculty evaluation procedures.

Sones also gave the board members a look at the proposed budget on the Public Service Training Program that was presented to the Governor's Office of Job Development and Training.

Proposed training by Pearl River College includes teaching nursing aid, welding, clerical and ABE-GED preparation at the Poplarville campus, and the same programs plus construction trades at the Forrest County Center in Hattiesburg.

Sones estimated his proposal cost at $606,530, but word from the Governor's Office indicated only three of the programs will be funded.

No confirmation was given on which programs or training sites will be used.

The board authorized Dr. White to advertise for purchase of two more diesel buses for use during the 1980-81 school year. PRC purchased four new transport buses this past year.

The PRC board passed a resolution stating that W.O. Moody of Poplarville is an honorary member of the Pearl River College Board. Moody was recognized for services rendered to the PRC Board from 1948-1979.

"Mr. Moody has been a stable, and staunch supporter and leader for Pearl River," Dr. White said, "and the board members wanted him to know that he is always welcome at the PRJC board meetings."

The November claim docket of $196,356 for operational expenditures was approved by the board.

FALLING FOR FRILLS

Many people go househunting in a remarkably casual way and sometimes end up making costly mistakes. One of the mistakes a househunter can make is to buy the frill instead of the house. All too often a family will fall in love with an eye-catching feature and buy the wrong house. This mistake happens frequently and in all price ranges.

Families skip over careful consideration of the major factors because something minor has really grabbed them. The lure may be a charming fireplace, a glamorous lighting fixture, a garage door opener, or even a unique tree or shrub in bloom.

Yielding to superficial attractions like these can result in your family winding up with a thoroughly unsuitable house. Bear in mind that these same alluring features can usually be added to another house at a relatively small cost, considering the amount of the overall purchase.

That old Southern custom of calling on friends on New Year's Day, is still very much a part of our customs on the Gulf Coast. It is, of course, a festive time full of warm friendship and good cheer-and good resolutions for the coming year.

Perhaps slivers of baked ham with tiny beaten biscuits, small sandwiches and cakes, set out on the sideboard or table, with coffee steaming hot and ready, along with some sort of festive libation. One of our favorites is Caire's Gourmet Wine Punch:

This simple, yet elegant punch is good all year around, of course, but specially festive during the holidays.

For this, pour into a punch bowl a fifth bottle each of burgundy, port and claret (or a paisano or other red wine) and a quart of sparkling (soda) water.

Stir together and add a good sized chunk of ice (or you can put the ice first, and pour the wines over it and stir). Ladle as needed into punch cups or glasses.

And, for many years we used to bid friends to open house on New Year's Day, with rich egg nog as the libation, along with coffee and such. Here's the old family recipe for:

McGuire's Egg Nog
Separate the yolks and whites of a dozen eggs in separate bowls, of course. To the yolks add a cup of sugar and beat well together, then add a quart of cream (or half and half) and generous dashes, say two or three teaspoons of vanilla, still beating.

Stir in, ever so slowly, a pint of good bourbon and two or three ounces of rum. Meanwhile, beat the whites of the eggs (it's helpful to have a helper at this, such as young sons about the house). When the eggs are stiffly beaten, fold into the other ingredients. Chill.

As you serve, grate nutmeg atop each cup. (P.S. You may add milk if you like your egg nog thinner, but thick and creamy is True McGuire style egg nog.)

That old Southern custom of calling on friends on New Year's Day, is still very much a part of our customs on the Gulf Coast. It is, of course, a festive time full of warm friendship and good cheer-and good resolutions for the coming year.

Perhaps slivers of baked ham with tiny beaten biscuits, small sandwiches and cakes, set out on the sideboard or table, with coffee steaming hot and ready, along with some sort of festive libation. One of our favorites is Caire's Gourmet Wine Punch:

This simple, yet elegant punch is good all year around, of course, but specially festive during the holidays.

For this, pour into a punch bowl a fifth bottle each of burgundy, port and claret (or a paisano or other red wine) and a quart of sparkling (soda) water.

Stir together and add a good sized chunk of ice (or you can put the ice first, and pour the wines over it and stir). Ladle as needed into punch cups or glasses.

And, for many years we used to bid friends to open house on New Year's Day, with rich egg nog as the libation, along with coffee and such. Here's the old family recipe for:

Separate the yolks and whites of a dozen eggs in separate bowls, of course. To the yolks add a cup of sugar and beat well together, then add a quart of cream (or half and half) and generous dashes, say two or three teaspoons of vanilla, still beating.

Stir in, ever so slowly, a pint of good bourbon and two or three ounces of rum. Meanwhile, beat the whites of the eggs (it's helpful to have a helper at this, such as young sons about the house). When the eggs are stiffly beaten, fold into the other ingredients. Chill.

As you serve, grate nutmeg atop each cup. (P.S. You may add milk if you like your egg nog thinner, but thick and creamy is True McGuire style egg nog.)

Bits 'n pieces

We are glad New Years Day is coming so we can make - or shall we say renew - resolutions. The main one for us, of course, will be pushing back from the table.

It is really hard to push back from the table during the Christmas Holidays since we are offered so many goodies.

And it seems all the best goodies are loaded with calories. There should be a law allowing only so many parties per day, we counted over five Friday alone.

There are many touching things which happen especially during the Holiday Season.

We have to commend the Sirlin Stockade in Waveland for making Christmas a little happier for 10 deserving children in that area.

We have been told they really enjoyed their special dinner and shopping tour at TG&Y Family Center in Waveland.

The management of TG&Y should also be commended for their giving a special discount to the children on the gifts they bought with money given them by Sirlin Stockade for shopping.

We want to congratulate Rev. Charles Clark and anyone else who may have helped in this special venture.

There was no better way of welcoming the Christmas Season than by listening to the Community Christmas Cantata Sunday night at the Main Street United Methodist Church.

We have to offer a special thanks to Directors Mary Howard and Ollie McKenna and the 40 or so choir members for giving a superior performance.

The choir members from various denominations had been practicing for many weeks, giving their time to give us a special Christmas Program.

Thanks to all of you! We are sure the couple hundred folks attending the Cantata feel the same way.

With New Years Day fast approaching, many will be shooting fireworks.

Every year hundreds of accidents, such as lost fingers, lost eyes, etc. are caused by fireworks. We ask those of you using them to please try to be extra careful.

Many of us are able to really enjoy Christmas by having the day off from work.

There are several groups of people with jobs, which require someone working 24 hours a day every day.

Several of these types of workers are seldom recognized for the job they do. People like police, firemen, hospital employees are usually forgotten unless needed over the holidays.

To them we say a special thank you, and we want you to know we appreciate the job you do, especially during the holidays.

Attempt 'no smoking' New Year's resolution

Make a New Year's Resolution to stop smoking, suggests the Mississippi Lung Association. Life and health are our two most valuable possessions. No amount of money can buy them, but many of us are dangerously and recklessly jeopardizing our health and shortening our lives by smoking.

New Year is a time of new beginnings. Why wait until you become stricken with a disabling or fatal disease? Make a new beginning for yourself by resolving to make a better life for yourself and those you love by stopping smoking.

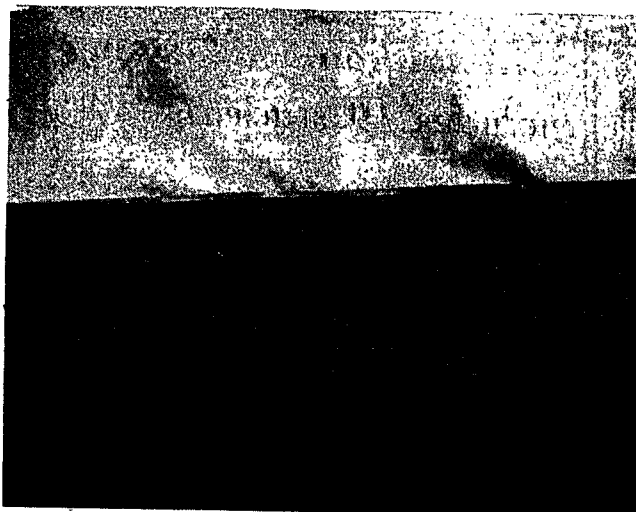

According to a Gallup poll, half of the people who still smoke, want to quit. Parting company with cigarettes must be a positive action based on a desire to want to quit, an insight into the health threat, a recognition of values and a recognition of the cost of smoking cigarettes.

No major medical or health agency questions the fact that smoking is harmful to health. Smoking is a major cause of emphysema, chronic bronchitis, lung cancer and heart disease. Serious thought should be given to exchanging cigarettes for a healthier future. We all want to be around to watch our children grow up and quitting smoking could make a difference.

More than 30 million Americans have quit smoking. This New Year, be your own best friend, do something nice for you and your family...set a goal and live the ranks of non-smokers. Save a life...your own!

WASTE IN OUR WOODS AND MARSH—Fires in wilderness areas, be they woodland or marsh, are costly to our diminishing natural resources. Gone are the days when we could afford to sacrifice the growth on hundreds of acres of woods or marsh for the sake of bagging a few rabbits or deer; gone are the days when we could be blasé about accidental wilderness fires. Hancock County ranks second in the state in economic losses to the type of destruction shown here Christmas Day in the Bay St. Louis marsh.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

How often should I advertise, where should I advertise, and how much? Small City Merchant.

Dear SCM: You neglected to ask about what you should advertise, but whether due to oversight or otherwise, we'll try to deal with that later.

An old maxim says, "Don't do business without advertising any longer than you would fish without bait." This could be best interpreted to modern man as "advertise regularly"—each week, or daily, if feasible.

Best results come from anticipating the needs and demands of prospects. For example, promoting anti-freeze just before the first cold weather, winter coats in early fall, etc.

Where to advertise will be determined by local media. Newspapers are generally less expensive and more dependable.

Radio can reach prospects, but with the many stations now coming into most market areas, the various listening preferences, and the difficulty of timing, it can be very expensive. TV has the same limitations, and is even more expensive.

Also, contrary to media rating claims, counting the number of radio and TV sets does not indicate in any way what the audience, if any, will be tuned to.

The local newspaper, distributed to paying subscribers is welcomed into homes, advertising and all. Many families buy the paper primarily to read the ads—can any other medium make this claim?

Seal Legislation . . .

Not Now But Someday

This northern seal pup is only several days old. In two or three years he will face the bludgeon and knife if the wasteful slaughter of these animals is not stopped.

The U.S. government just finished spending several million dollars of your money to slaughter more than 25,000 seals whose pelts neither you nor the government will ever use.

The annual slaughter of northern fur seals on Alaska's Pribilof Islands has been conducted under the auspices of the U.S. government for more than half a century but the public knows little of the bloody activity and less about why it is conducted.

Every year the government pays about 70 of the 650 Aleut residents on the Pribilof Islands to bludgeon and slaughter thousands of fur seals. The slaughter lasts about five weeks.

Were this a normal business operation conducted by a businessman worried about profits and losses, it should cost no more than $200,000. That is assuming the 70 men are earning a healthy $8 an hour for an eight-hour day and five-day week. But the boss in this instance is the federal bureaucracy which means it costs the American taxpayer more than $5 million to do a job the gas station attendant down the street could have supervised for less than five percent of that amount.

One thing about the government, it's constant in its business practices. After spending the five million to butcher the seals, it contracted with a southern fur company which returned less than $1 million for the pelts. The net loss was $4 million. A normal company would have gone bankrupt before the sun set if it practiced business like this. But the government doesn't go bankrupt. It raises taxes—your taxes.

All this might be regarded as simply another example of the government's irresponsibility to the people who elect and support it were there not a tragedy involved.

The Pribilof's fur seals are the exclusive property of the American public like the bald eagle and plains buffalo. But because of a treaty ratified in 1911 between the U.S., Russia, Japan, and Canada, 30 percent of the seal pelts are sent to Japan and Canada.

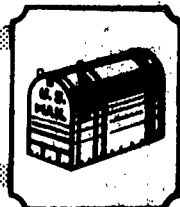

But even the remaining 70 percent of the seal pelts seldom go to Americans. The majority are auctioned to West German furriers by the South Carolina fur company. The furriers then make them into coats for wealthy European matrons.

In other words, these beautiful, gentle animals that belong to the American public are butchered for coats for the rich. They are slain for the sake of vanity. And the American taxpayer subsidizes it.

The seal killing may end if the legislation filed by New York congressman Lester Wolff passes. It is in the house of representatives now. Investing a 15 cent stamp and paper this evening to write your congressman could save yourself and the nation millions of dollars in the years to come. It could also save a lot of seals.

Dear Mr. Cuevas:

We were pleased to have the opportunity to meet and talk with you on the occasion of your recent visit to the Naval Academy. We hope you enjoyed the Naval Academy Athletic Association presentation.

As you learned during your stay here, the Athletic Program at the Naval Academy embraces 28 intercollegiate sports including a fine program for our women. We also have one of the most complete intramural sports programs in the country.

To maintain respectable position in all our intercollegiate sports, we make a concerted effort to attract the best type of student-athletes possible to the Naval Academy.

During your visit, we hope you were impressed with the fact that the Naval Academy academic program is of the highest quality. First priority is given to studies, but at the same time, we believe a successful athletic program is not only desirable, but necessary.

We believe the spirit and the success of the Brigade of Midshipmen in many facets of Academy life is reflected in the performance of our athletic teams on the field, in and on the water, in the field house, and in the gymnasium.

Manpower is certainly a determining factor in any athletic program. Therefore, we would appreciate any help you could give us in stimulating an interest in the Naval Academy to outstanding student-athletes in your area.

We would be pleased to receive a letter from you, or from any young man or woman you have contacted.

Flu Shots Protect Against Infection

Annual influenza vaccination generally is advised for anyone with chronic heart, lung, or kidney disease and diabetes, other chronic illness and for people over 65.

Flu shots generally are not recommended for healthy children or adults under 65 and most definitely should not be given to anyone allergic to eggs. The World Health Organization has reported recently that smallpox has now been eliminated from the entire world. Vaccination is no longer required for travelers entering the U.S. from foreign nations.

In a well organized community with water purification, pasteurization of milk and safeguarding of food, vaccination against typhoid fever is unnecessary. Rarely, it might be advisable for foreign travel into areas where typhoid is common.

Other vaccinations may be recommended or required for travelers entering areas where specific diseases such as yellow fever, plague, cholera and typhus are prevalent. Your local health department will have current information.

Although vaccine is given infrequently for tuberculosis, many physicians test for it around 12 months of age. The "TB" test is a skin test in which the site of the test is observed at 24 to 72 hours to determine if a reaction has occurred. Appropriate medical attention for the disease can be given when it is detected by skin test or x-ray film in early childhood.

vaccine is grown in eggs.

Recommendations for dosage and booster doses may vary from year to year, the American Medical Association points out. The time to start flu immunization is well in advance of the winter season of cold weather.

Routine smallpox vaccination no longer is recommended in the United States, and the "Corporate Democracy Act" is reportedly ready for introduction in Congress in 1980.

The act is being proposed by a coalition of labor, consumer groups, and public interest groups.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader is among founders of the coalition.

The coalition says it plans a decade-long attack on business and reports it has a few Congressmen lined up to introduce the proposal.

The coalition reportedly also plans a "Big Business Day" April 7, to emphasize their "war" on business.

The proposed act will include the following provisions:

...independent boards of directors for corporations.

...independent audits of corporations.

...independent committees to determine whether business complies with the law.

...banning of any person from serving on more than one corporate board of directors.

...public notification two years in advance of any corporate plan to close or relocate facilities.

...more corporate reports to government on employment, environmental protection, safety, foreign production, management performance, research, and tax rates.

HOUSE PLAN

This attractive home is designed around a huge "great room," but has many other interesting features, too.

As you enter from the front porch, you notice immediately:

- The size of the great room.
- The cathedral ceiling with false beams.
- The fireplace at the long end of the room.

Immediately to the rear of the great room is the dining room, which has sliding doors to the rear yard patio. This provides an interesting view from the great room to the back yard.

The adjacent kitchen has all built-in appliances, plus easy access to the nearby washer and dryer area.

Located to the quiet end of the home are the three bedrooms and two baths. Two of the bedrooms have walk-in closets. The bathroom plumbing works back up each other for more economical construction.

The long country style exterior features board and batten siding with stone up to the window sill height. Horizontal siding is used at the front entry for effect.

This home, design number 429, has 1,426 square feet of living and storage space, and 284 square feet in the carport.

Complete blueprints are available from E. A. Myers, residential designer, 1400 Scott Boulevard, Decatur, Georgia 30030. This plan appears in the sixth edition of the company's plan book.

National honor listing includes 19 students

A total of 19 students from this area have been included in the second annual edition of The National Dean's List, published by Educational Communications, Inc., northbrook, Ill.

Students are selected for recognition by their deans or registrars if they are in the upper 10 percent of their class or on their school's Dean's List.

The 37,000 students included in the current edition are from 1,200 colleges and universities nationwide and represent less than one half of one percent of the 8,000,000 college students in the country.

Local students selected include:

VA checks boosted 9.9 percent

President Jimmy Carter approved legislation in November granting a 9.9 percent cost-of-living increase for fiscal year 1980 in monthly compensation checks to 2.3 million service-connected disabled veterans, and over 300,000 widows and children of those who have died as a result of service-connected causes.

Action on the new increase rate, now PL 96-128, which was due to go into effect Oct. 1, had been delayed for weeks in the Congress while the House and Senate scrutinized total Federal spending recommendations for the 1980 budget.

Late in October, a vote of Representatives boosted its original cost-of-living estimate from 8.3 percent to 9.9 percent.

On November 15, with an end to budget deliberation in sight, the Senate moved to accept the 9.9 percent figure with implementing amendments.

Final Congressional action came the next day when the House agreed to the Senate amendments and passed the measure on to the President for his signature.

"We felt we had to move quickly if eligible veterans and their survivors were to receive the increase before the first of the year," said Rep. Ray Roberts (D-Texas), chairman of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Roberts said that even though his committee had been working since February to set the increase rate, at the time of passage, the compensation bill was already six weeks overdue.

"The mood of the Congress was to look at every Federal expenditure with a sharp eye," Roberts said. "This meant that the budget process this year was especially difficult and unusually long."

"Because of the delay," Roberts said, "eligible veterans and their survivors should have received their regular monthly compensation payment on or about Dec. 1 at the old rate."

But, he went on to explain, the Veterans Administration then issued a special, separate check which should have arrived before Christmas, containing the 9.9 percent cost-of-living increase, in itself retroactive to October 1.

Starting Jan. 1, and for the remainder of FY 1980, all future compensation payments will be issued at the new rate.

"Prayer of Those Growing Old"

PRAYER OF THOSE GROWING OLD

Lord, Thou knowest that I am growing older. Keep me from becoming talkative and possessed with the idea that I must express myself on every subject.

Release me from the craving to straighten out everyone's affairs.

Keep me from the recital of endless detail. Give me wings to get to the point.

Seal my lips when I am inclined to tell of my aches and pains. They are increasing with the years and my love to speak of them grows sweeter as time goes by.

Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally I may be wrong.

Make me thoughtful but not nosy; helpful but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom and experience it does seem a pity not to use it all. But Thou knowest, Lord, that I want a few friends at the end.

Year's first month honors Roman god

By JOE PILET

Since the days of ancient Rome, the first day of each year, has customarily been given over to honoring Janus, the god of the gates and the doors.

Janus is a god who has two faces and is able to view the beginning of the new and the ending of the old.

English people "borrowed" some of the Roman customs and traditions. On New Year's Day they had their chimneys cleaned, believing this brought good luck to the household.

And American borrowed from England, however, instead of cleaning the chimney they "wiped the slate."

In a way, we continue to "wipe the slate" by forgiving trespasses, and at the same time resolving to correct our own faults and bad habits and start the New Year with plans for improvement and progress.

Customs of New Year's Day have further enriched our language.

In England when pins were made by hand it was the custom of the husband on New Years day to give his wife money with which to purchase a year's supply of pins. The wife now gets "pin money," small sums not to be accounted for!

Janus was a pagan god and ignored by Christians until the early English took over the custom of New Year recognition. In A.D. 487, the Christian church introduced New Year's as a holy day.

All countries now celebrate the New Year, although the date varies according to religion. For example, Iran celebrates its New Year on March 21.

Girl Scouts celebrate international Christmas

The annual Christmas Party of Girl Scout Troop 32 from Bay St. Louis Catholic Elementary School was staged recently at Our Lady of the Gulf Cafeteria.

Theme of this year's party was "Gifts from Foreign Countries."

Each of the girls depicted a country in the Christmas time. After they finished their speeches, they hung an ornament on a Christmas tree.

Girls participating and the countries they represented included: Sharrar Way, America; Suzanne Hille, England; Dee Dee Strong, Japan; Andrea Ambrose, Mexico; Kelly Lee, Switzerland.

Also, Angel Given, Italy; Alceen Schwabacher, Holland; Missy Moran, Spain; Julie Schaefer, France; Jennifer Kirk, Russia; Christiana Carapetian, India; Georgiana Dagnall, Greece; Leslie Gieber, Germany.

Santa Claus arrived after the girl depicting America finished her speech and he gave all the children in attendance a chocolate Santa Claus.

Fathers took turns hitting a Mexican pinata. Each of the fathers were blindfolded and swung with a broom stick until all the candies were out.

Refreshments were then served.

A table laid with two punch bowls and various sandwiches and hot "buns" (doughnuts, dips and chips) and a Christmas cake baked by Leader Mrs. Donald Strong.

Assisting Mrs. Strong was Mrs. Helene Moran, troop assistant leader.

ETV Brief

ETV OPERA
Donizetti's opera, "L'Elisir D'Amore," is transferred from its traditional provincial Italian setting to the American Wild West for a special adaptation, "Elixir of Love," to be presented at 4 p.m., Sunday, January 8, on the Mississippi ETV Network. Sung by the Cincinnati Opera, "Elixir of Love" moves to the Texas panhandle in the 1840's. Donizetti's female lead, Adina, becomes a ranch owner. Memoir, the poor peasant, becomes a cowboy in the true tradition of the American hero.

The needs of the dying and aging person were addressed, as well as what the living can learn from the dying.

Home Health staffers study terminal care

Home health aides, volunteers and supervisory personnel of the Long Beach office of South Mississippi Home Health and Rehabilitation Agency recently attended an all day workshop in Hattiesburg on "Caring for the Terminally Ill Patient."

This inservice program was directed by David Allison, field representative for the School of Health Related Professions of the University Medical Center.

The needs of the dying and aging person were addressed, as well as what the living can learn from the dying.

Those attending from the Long Beach office were Sandra Johnson, RN, Leona Wright and Rosalinda Wright, home health aides.

A dramatic reading of "Minnie Reminders" was portrayed by Annette Drennan, special projects director of South Mississippi Home Health Agency.

The workshop was part of the agency's development of the hospice concept throughout its twelve district offices.

Hospice care is a team effort to meet the needs of the terminally ill person and his family, emphasizing care in the home.

Those attending from the Long Beach office were Sandra Johnson, RN, Leona Wright and Rosalinda Wright, home health aides.

Two Hancock-area residents danced roles in the University of Southern Mississippi theater arts department production of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker," Dec. 23.

Among the dancers were Barbara Titler, Deborah Cleveland, Nayna Lightsey and Chuck Page of Gulfport; Duke Wilburn of Pascagoula; Robert Thompson of Ocean Springs; Cindy Hinds of Bay St. Louis; Blake Cannon of Waveland, and Rose Sekul and Megan Morris of Biloxi.

The ballet was first presented Dec. 17, 1892 at the Maryinsky Theater in St. Petersburg, Russia.

The American premier was in New York in 1940. It has since become a Christmas tradition.

Notice To Hancock County Home Owners

IN EARLY JANUARY, 1980, The Hancock County Assessor's office will mail to each home owner, on record, a Homestead Exemption application. This application will be mailed to you in an envelope that can be used to return the application after it is signed and will include return postage. (These special envelopes are similar to the Motor Vehicle envelopes now being used for your tag billings.) When you receive Homestead Exemption application, simply sign on the line designated, fill in Motor Vehicle tag numbers, tear off the back copy for your records and return the white, yellow and pink copies to this office. This is the first time that this service is being offered to the home owners of Hancock County and we feel that some minor problems could arise. If you do not receive your Homestead Exemption application within a reasonable time contact this office by calling 467-5473 or for those citizens living in the Picaune School District 798-5533.

Effective starting in January of 1980, those persons 100 percent disabled, under Federal Social Security, regardless of age, will be eligible for the full $5,000 exemption just as those who are 65 years of age. Those citizens who are qualified as 100 percent disabled under Federal Social Security must come to the office to complete another application. (If it is not convenient for you to come to the office, we will make arrangements to file your application with as little inconvenience as possible).

Those citizens who are filing their Homestead Exemption application for the first time, must come to the office to file their application and should bring their deed to the property, Motor Vehicle numbers and Social Security Numbers. If this is not convenient please advise us and we will arrange to file your application in accord with your convenience. Those citizens who have any changes to be made in their application must also come to the office and have a new application filled out for them.

'First Kiln champion in 15 years'

Glass receives title

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Without throwing a punch, Keith Glass, 16, of Kiln has been named 1980 Silver Gloves novice heavyweight champion for Mississippi and Louisiana.

"Glass is the first champion from Kiln in 15 years. The Kiln was known for fine boxers and champions several years ago," according to Head Coach John Whisenhunt of the Bay-Kiln-Waveland Boxing Club.

But, Glass' championship title ends a 15 year drought for boxers from the Kiln area," Whisenhunt added. The 194 pound Hancock North Central junior was declared winner of the novice heavy-weight division after being unopposed in a three day Silver Gloves tournament held in Kenner last weekend.

Stanley Christmas, 14, of Bay St. Louis won a semi-finalist trophy in the welter weight division. The 147 pound Bay High School sophomore, in only his third career match, fought Ernest Russo of New Iberia.

"Christmas fought a seasoned fighter who had about 20 fights under his belt. Stanley did real well," Whisenhunt explained. According to Whisenhunt the three day tournament saw 292 entries in the two-ring event.

The Bay-Kiln-Waveland Boxing Club had five entries in the tournament. In addition to Glass and Christmas were Joe Goodman of Pearlborough, Timmy LaFontaine of Pass Christian and Todd Rooks of Kiln.

Guide to the National Wildlife Refuges

By Laura and William Riley, Anchor Press, 1979, $14.95. The National Wildlife Refuge System encompasses 30 million acres, and provides a home for 220 species of mammals, more than 600 birds, 250 of reptiles and amphibians, 200 of fish, and a myriad of plants.

This book covers all 365 refuges, devoting several pages to each. It includes information on location; nearby campgrounds, motels and points of interest; appropriate clothing and equipment; available activities; and best visiting times, emphasizing birding highlights.

A Guide to North American Waterfowl
By Paul Johnson, Indiana University Press, 1979, $15.95. Beginning with a general discourse on waterfowl biology, Johnson proceeds to give accounts of individual species of ducks, geese and swans.

A sketch and distribution map for each bird, plus information on its habitat, foods, social behavior, reproductive biology, and conservation and status, is included. The guide also has a handy key and a list of sketches to aid in quick identification.

The Hunters
By Philip Whitfield, illustrations by Richard Orr, Simon and Schuster, 1978, $14.95. In this book about predation and predators, you'll discover how a cheetah can run 15 miles per hour faster than the national speed limit, how a flea can jump 300 times its own length, and other intriguing accounts of special adaptations for survival.

Fifteen categories of predation are covered, as well as general subjects such as food chains and man as predator. Superbly complementing this enlightening text are the often dramatic and always meticulously detailed illustrations of British natural history artist Richard Orr.

Readers with or without previous exposure to the field of natural history will find this book readable and fascinating.

New Directions in Farm, Land and Food Policies - A Time for State and Local Action
Edited by Joe Belden et al., Conference on Alternative State and Local Policies, Washington, D.C., $10.95. This publication covers a spectrum of agricultural issues, including ways to strengthen and protect family farms, energy conservation technologies, support for low-income farmers, farm women, black farmers, and alternative crop marketing methods.

Each succinct chapter contains an overview of the problem, supplemented by relevant new reprints, followed by a list of organizations and published resources to contact on that issue.

A listing of agricultural newsletters, publications, organizations, and pertinent federal, state and local agencies is also included. Persons involved in agricultural issues should value this resource on farm-related problems and organizations.

Recreation and Outdoor Life Directory
Edited by Paul and Steven Wasserman, Gale Research Co., 1979, $45.00.

The Wassermans have compiled a valuable 468-page resource directory of non-competitive and recreational outdoor pursuits.

It gives information to satisfy the needs of everyone interested in the outdoors: hikers, campers, fishermen, boaters, students and job-seekers.

The first part covers sources of information: national, international, state, colleges and universities, libraries and research centers; the second lists federal and state recreation facilities.

How You Can Influence Congress: The Complete Handbook for the Citizen Lobbyist
By George Alderson and Everett Sentman, E. P. Dutton, 1975, $15.95 (cloth), $9.95 (paperback).

Writing from years of experience, the authors provide step-by-step guidance on how concerned citizens can influence Congressional doings.

Starting with how to write, respond to, and speak with your Congressman, Alderson and Sentman progress to organizing campaigns and forming citizens organizations (including recruiting members and raising funds), as well as media relations and publications.

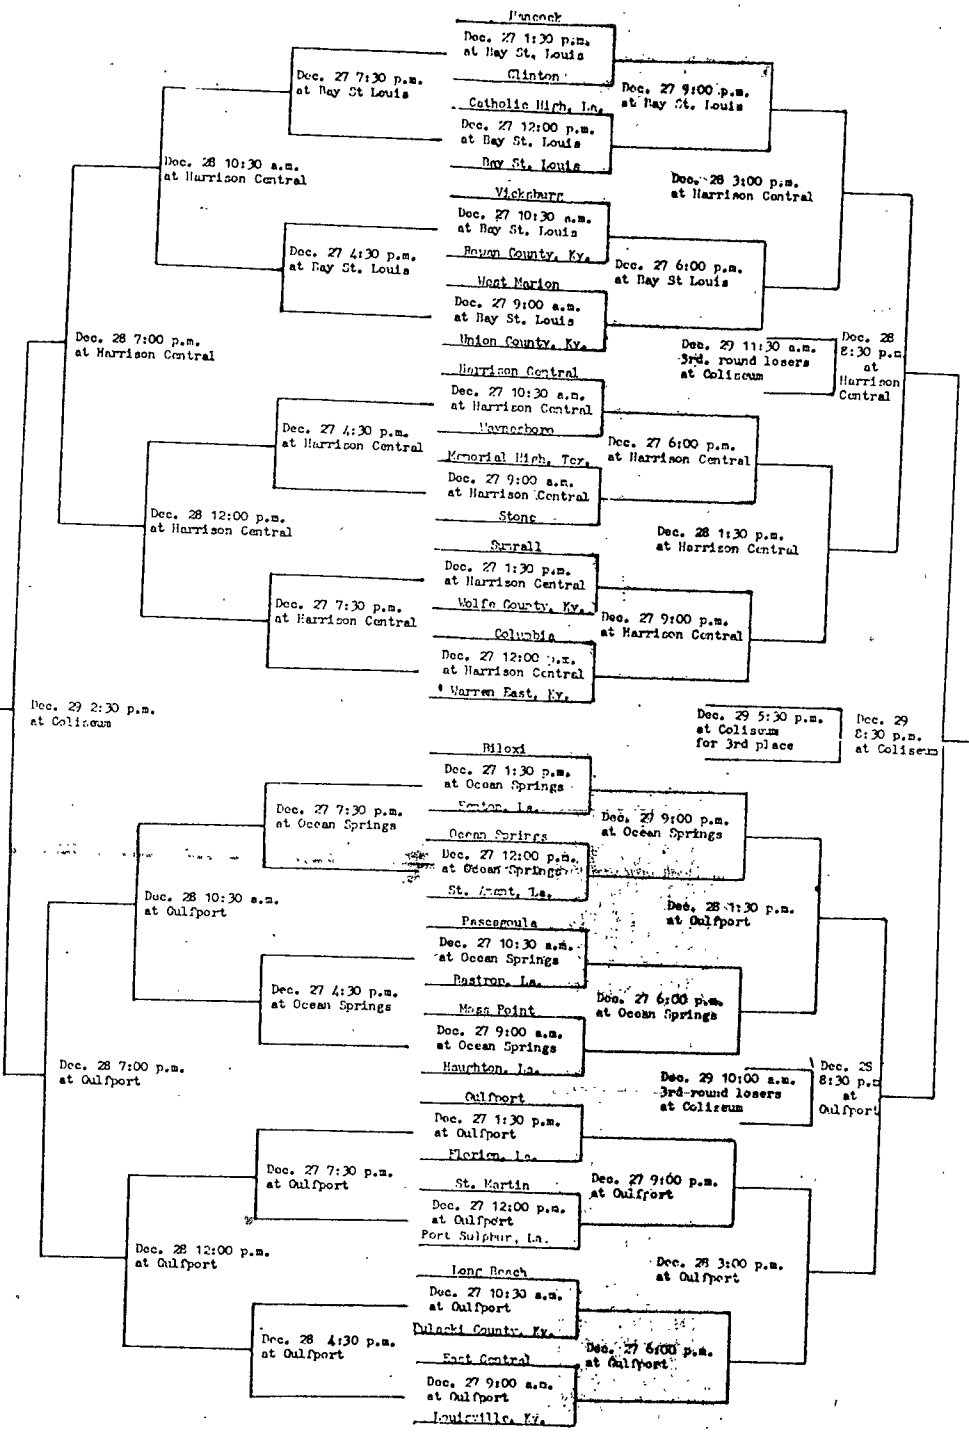

The final sections deal with campaign tactics: presenting arguments, preparing and giving testimony, and building long-term influence. Plenty of actual practical examples are included.

The Poems of Max Ehrmann
By JOE FILET

This slender volume of ninety five pages contains extraordinarily beautiful thoughts expressed in philosophic prose poems. It contains the well known "Desiderata" which was originally published in 1948.

Adlai Stevenson had planned to have a number of "Desiderata" printed and to send the poem to his friends during the holiday season, but was prevented from doing so by his untimely death. (Stevenson 1900-1965).

Ehrmann's book of poems, edited by his wife, Bertha K. Ehrmann, is divided into thirteen categories and include under the division called "Days and Places" a Christmas message entitled "A Christmas Thought To You".

The world has the heart of a child today,
In snow trodden city and country way;
And the love that we bring has made kindness King,
And memories dear of the ripened year
Are causing the lips of the world to sing.
And the feeling of music, O friend of mine,
That pictures before me that image of thine,
And with nothing to do but old thoughts pursue
I journey o'er lanes and snow painted plains -
In fancy I stretch out my hand to you.

Ehrmann's "Desiderata" which begins "Go placidly, amid the noise and the haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence"; and "may evening's twilight find me gentle."

Believing that God and Nature are one, Ehrmann wrote:
Now this one thing is clear to me;

That laws, however claimed to be
From God, if they against nature go,
Are human made, and do confess
Man's ignorance. For this I know,
Our God has meant us happiness.

The Poems of Max Ehrmann are in the City-County Library they were published by Crescendo Publishing Company of 48-50 Melrose Street in Boston, Massachusetts, 02116.

The Senior Adults of First Baptist Church were busy during the summer months collecting their best recipes as well as those of friends and neighbors.

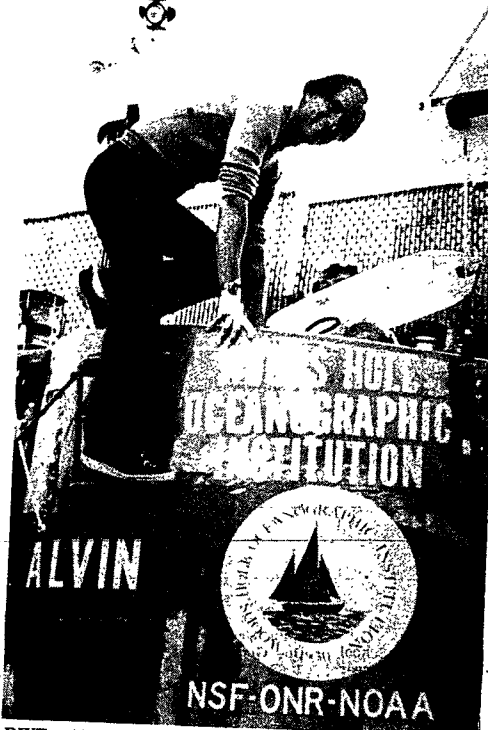

What started as a small group project turned into a coast-wide effort.

Now the finished product has arrived - their own cookbook, properly named Good Eatin'.

There are over 400 recipes, a wealth of baking hints and living tips and a lot of love included in each book.

The book sells for $3.50 and would make a lovely gift.

Telephone excise tax continues reduction

The Federal Excise Tax on telephone service will drop from its present three percent rate to two percent on Jan. 1.

This is a further step in the gradual phase-out of the tax - which is being reduced one percentage point per year and will cease to apply after 1981, company officials report.

Summer at sea a long-standing tradition at US Naval Academy

MIDSHIPMEN TRAINING VESSELS - The men and women at the U.S. Naval Academy all train on these YP's and receive the same experience as fleet training. During summer months many of the midshipmen go to sea for professional training with the United States Naval Fleet.

By S. Grady Thigpen

Bill collecting 50-years-ago could be hairy experience

Back during the 1920s and 1930s, W. H. Burks of Rt. 2, Picayune worked for the Wrought Iron Range Company over a number of counties in South Mississippi as a collector of delinquent accounts.

Among others he was directed to go to see a man in a rural area up in central Mississippi.

When he got into the vicinity where he saw a man sitting on a stump by the side of the road. He stopped and asked how to get to the home of the man he was looking for.

He was told to go on down the road a short distance and take the first right hand road, then go on past two churches. His informant hesitated a moment thinking how to better explain, then said, "The white church is the black church, and the gray church is the white church."

Having explained about the churches, the man said, "After passing the churches, the road is pretty bad but the bad places have been gravelled and I don't think you'll get stuck.

"Pretty soon you'll come to a store on the right hand side of the road, and a little further on, another store in a field on the left hand side of the road.

"About half way between the two stores there is a gap in the fence on the left hand side." To describe this gap, he said "there are four barb wires running from one side of the gate to the other side. You'll have to unfasten them and pull the wire back before you can turn in on the dim road that leads to the house of the man you want to see."

Mr. Burks after arriving at the gap, undid the wire and drove his car through the gap. When he looked up he saw a storekeeper lounging nearby. He asked him how to get to the home of the man he was looking for.

The man walked over nearer to him, changed his tobacco from one side of his mouth to the other and pointing said: "Follow this dim road, but there is a bad sand bed on it, you'll never be able to get your car through it, however," he said, "You could drive your car around thru the woods to get by, but you might find a tree down blocking your way."

The man turned, looked down the dim road thoughtfully, then turned and said, "you might as well leave your car at the sand bed and walk the balance of the way. Not wishing to get into something I could not get out of," said Burks, "I left the car at the edge of the sand bed and walked on over to the little hut in which this man lived."

"I rapped on the front porch. In a minute or two walked a middle aged woman, and in the corner of her mouth, the longest cigarette I've ever seen, it was at least 6 inches long."

"I found out that this was the right place as the woman informed me she was the wife of the man I was hunting for. She told me that her husband was off down in the woods with a sack of corn to feed his hogs; that I could find him by following the path which she pointed out to me."

"The lady was very talkative and kept me for several minutes listening to quite a bit of their family history. She said, 'My husband ain't feeling well at all. I guess you heard about what happened to him? He has his head all tied up, so you'll know it him when you see him.'"

The woman kept talking, saying "My husband is a sober man but when he gets off to town without me, he'll drink a little. A few days ago, he went to town and got hold of some extra strong stuff, some of the kind of stuff that'll make a rabbit spit in a bulldogs' face, and he got into a fight with a big bully who took one swing at my husband, breaking his jaw which the doctor had to wire back together."

Mr. Burks soon found a long faced gentleman with head all tied up. He was very friendly and paid part of the money that was due, saying "I had all the money saved up to pay for the stove. If you had come a few weeks ago, I could have paid it all. The boy just had to have a class ring so my wife let him out talk her and took part of the money and bought it for him. I'll mail the balance as soon as I sell my goats."

(Editors Note: This is the fifth of an Echo series on the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md. We hope these articles will generate renewed interest in the Academy, especially in Mississippi which has only 20 midshipmen but should have at least 35).

Summer for most college students means jobs, vacations at the beach or backpacking across mountain trails.

For the 4,400 midshipmen of the U.S. Naval Academy, summer is a time to get a first hand look at the sea-going Navy, when they leave their Annapolis classrooms to report to ships around the world and naval bases across the country for intensive in-the-fleet training.

Midshipmen have been going to sea for professional training since the early days of the academy, almost 135 years ago. Today the philosophy of putting midshipmen into the Fleet to provide them with a comprehensive naval education still holds.

Says the Midshipman Summer Training are particularly important, for they are evaluations made in an environment which cannot be simulated in a classroom or academic environment."

For the new third classmen, fresh from their plebe, or freshman year, "youngster" cruise is a real change from sitting in a classroom, providing the first opportunity to get "hands-on" experience in the Fleet.

Third class cruise is designed to give midshipmen experience with enlisted personnel. On board ship the third classmen wear enlisted uniforms, sleep, eat and work with the enlisted crew from the engine room, to the bridge. Ships' commanding officers assimilate the midshipmen into the crews as much as possible and rotate them so they will get experience in a variety of shipboard operations.

The academy also has a cruise program for youngsters to be run aboard the academy's own 80-foot yard patrol craft. An equal number of men and women midshipmen, plus training officers and some first classmen (seniors) in leadership positions, conduct underway operations in coastal and inland waters along the Atlantic seaboard, making port visits at naval installations in such cities as Norfolk, Newport and Philadelphia.

The midshipmen on the YP cruises get the same type of experience as their colleagues in the Fleet, learning everything from basic deck seamanship to handling a ship steaming in formation. Ashore training is conducted in such areas as weapons and damage control.

While youngster cruise focuses on the surface Navy, the second class (junior year) summer program is designed to give midshipmen a look at all the options that will be open to them after graduation.

Second class summer is divided into two parts. The first segment takes second classmen to Pensacola, Fla., for an introduction to flight training; to Quantico, Va., for field training with the Marines; to New London, Conn., for submarine orientation; and to Norfolk, Va. for surface ship training.

From a ride in a jet to at-sea operations aboard a destroyer, midshipmen get a good look at each warfare specialty, experiencing as closely as possible newly-commissioned officers' roles.

During the second segment midshipmen learn ship damage control in Philadelphia, take a public communications course at the academy and study ship tactics for one week in a classroom and a second week on YPs cruising the Chesapeake Bay.

Midshipmen first class are assigned sea duty aboard fleet ships in the Atlantic and Pacific. During the summer of 1979 women, for the first time in academy history, were assigned training duties in the fleet. The federal statute, Title 10 of the U.S. Code, Section 6015, now permits the permanent duty assignment of women to non-combatant ships such as repair or tender ships and temporary duty to any ship for periods of 180 days or less, if the ship will not be assigned a combat mission.

Working with junior officers who are assigned as "running mates," the first classmen stand deck watches, sleep in officers' country, eat in the wardrooms, and, on smaller ships may qualify as junior officers of the deck.

While first classmen are assigned to many of the same ships as third classmen, they also have several options not open to the underclassmen. Those interested in participating in the foreign exchange program, for instance, can spend six to seven weeks serving with foreign navies during their senior summer cruise.

The midshipmen are chosen for exchange cruises on their language ability and overall performance record. In all, 23 foreign countries participate in the exchange program.

SENIOR CITIZEN EVENTS

BY THERESA JAMES
RSVP Director
 What does a person do when he reaches 60 and retires? After the first few months of freedom from time and work schedules the retiree begins to feel this new found freedom is not really what he wants. He has always been taught that time is valuable and to waste it is unthinkable, but what to do with all of this free time—the question keeps coming up.

 The answer is very simple if the retiree lives in Hancock County. The Retired Senior Volunteer Program can channel the energies and experiences of our over 60 people into worthwhile projects to help better the community where we live. For instance, if you like children there is a place for you at Headstart, Child Development Center or the Bay St. Louis special ed classes.

 Volunteers assist teachers, help serve the noon meals and read to the children.

Also, in Summer, the Public Library uses volunteers to listen to a child read. This improves the reading of the child and brings about a close relationship with children.
 There are 27 "Stations" where volunteers serve in our community. Some of the duties are answering phones in offices of Civil Defense, approximately 35 volunteers serve seven days a week dispensing information and coffee to tourists is also a place of good fellowship.

 There is a feeling of civic pride in this small building where the traveler is always welcome and greeted by volunteers wearing smiles and are always ready to brag just a little about Hancock County and the whole State of Mississippi.
 Travelers from all over the world have stopped there and some have been sent cards just after returning home. The Senior Citizens Center bounds with volunteers going about their duties every day. Each class such as: art, ceramics, needlework, quilting, framing, macrame and liquid embroidery.
 Volunteers also perform needed duties such as serving the noon meal every day at the nutrition site and delivering meals to the home bound. Also, retired nurses volunteer to take blood pressures every week both in Bay St. Louis and Waveland.
 Also to aid to the basic human need to socialize we have hosts and hostesses in Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Pearlman and Kiln who volunteer their time to organizing and conducting social activities for other seniors.
 Home care by volunteers often goes unrecognized, but there are many, many over 60 volunteers who visit the ill, clean their homes for them, shop for groceries and drugs and perform tasks that are so necessary to the lives of these shut-ins that if they were not doing this service, our community could not possibly offer these services to the citizens.
 Also, there is a telephone committee who call those living alone every day to make certain they are alright.
 Visitors in nursing homes and hospitals spread cheer by just being there and we also have a group of "Singing Seniors" who visit and sing for the patients at Gulf View Haven, Miramar and Gulfport Convalescent Home. They bring a lot of joy into lives that have little else.
 Above are a few of the many services which 293 volunteers perform for a total of 60,000 hours every year under the Retired Senior Volunteer Program.
 The staff driver-clerk, Charles Johnson; CETA worker Gerry Blanchard; Secretary-Bookkeeper Lucille Witter; and Director Theresa James would like to thank all of the volunteers and at Christmas time count our blessings, all 293 of them, and wish all of you a very, very Merry Christmas, because you have Christmas in your hearts all year long, not just at Christmas time.

YOU AND YOUR PET

CATS NEED CARE, TOO
 According to popular opinion, cats are extremely self-reliant animals. They bathe themselves, often catch their own food, and usually do land on their feet when dropped.

Unfortunately, this independent image leads some people to wrongly assume that cats can also thrive when casually abandoned in urban or rural areas.

As a result, many areas of the country have sizeable, but unnoticed, stray cat populations.

The realities of life for stray cats are harsh. Most are never properly fed or adequately housed. They live in empty lots, abandoned buildings and under cars. They're not vaccinated and have little resistance to disease.

Stray cats produce large numbers of unwanted kittens, since they are rarely, if ever, neutered.

It's possible for the female to come into heat a short time after giving birth to a litter, and be ready to deliver the second batch of kittens three months later.

Many of these kittens die of starvation or contagious disease.

The adult females become thin and unkempt and have difficulty surviving through long, harsh winters.

Stray cats are a reservoir for feline infections. Distemper, rhinotracheitis and internal parasites are some of the problems transferred in the dingy quarters where abandoned cats huddle for the night.

A cat weakened by one or more viral diseases often develops secondary bacterial infections.

If an animal manages to avoid infections, the city, and even more rural surroundings, are still dangerous places for a homeless animal. Pesticide baits can easily sicken or kill a cat scavenging for food, while empty cans cut paws and mouths.

Automobiles kill and injure thousands of cats each year. Fractures, dislocations and head injuries resulting from car or motorcycle collisions with cats are common among strays.

The abandoned cat rapidly becomes wary of strangers, and may even reject well-meant offerings of food. It will run and hide, perhaps returning later to sample a few mouthfuls of food.

An individual or family that wishes to keep a cat should realize that a cat's needs are similar to those of a dog.

That cat's primary life of defense against disease if good nutrition. A cat owner should feed a balanced cat food every day to help the pet resist infection.

Some consideration should be given to the special needs of individual pets. Pregnant or nursing cats need additional food to keep their kittens supplied with nourishment.

Adult male cats that develop the bladder condition known as cystitis should receive a special diet.

All cats should be immunized against feline distemper, rabies and respiratory disease once a year.

Fleas, ticks, ear mites and other parasites should be treated as soon as you notice them. I also recommend neutering your cat, unless you have a planned breeding program.

A cat, like any other pet, deserves some shelter when bad weather strikes. If a cat must be outdoors, provide an adequate shelter.

Hancock Bank declares dividend

Leo W. Seal Jr., president of Hancock Bank reported stockholders have approved a proposal recommended by the bank's board of directors to declare a 5 percent stock dividend to stockholders of record Dec. 5, 1979.

This action includes an increase in the authorized capital stock from 315,000 shares of $10 par value stock to 331,000 shares and will result in one share of new stock to be issued for each 20 shares presently held.
 The proposal did not provide for the issuance of fractional shares, hence stockholders with resultant fractional shares will receive cash based on whatever their fractional interest is times the current market value.

Seal also reported that dividend checks mailed December 15 will include the regular quarterly dividend of 35 cents, plus an extra 35 cents per share. This, in addition to the three previous quarterly dividends and the 5 percent stock dividend; bring the total for the year to the equivalent of $2.25 per share.

Improvements financing available through FmHA

Rural homeowners in Hancock County who need to upgrade their homes may be eligible for financing from the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

Robert W. Smith, FmHA County supervisor, said that in addition to financing the purchase of homes, the Agency also has funds available to families who already own homes that need insulation and weatherization improvements.

FmHA will offer loans for energy conservation improvements to all rural families of low or moderate incomes who cannot obtain adequate commercial credit and are otherwise eligible for FmHA loan assistance. Smith said this is not a new loan program, but part of a total loan program FmHA has had for a number of years.

However, the agency is stressing the need to conserve energy and help families combat higher costs of home energy.

Improvements designed to save energy such as installing additional insulation, storm windows and doors, caulking, and in some cases modifying heating systems will, in many cases save more than enough to repay the loan funds borrowed for the improvement, according to Smith.

In addition to energy conservation, repair loans may also be used to remove health and safety hazards—such as repairing roofs, providing sanitary water and waste disposal systems, and upgrading electrical wiring.

Applicants must own and live in their homes on a farm, in the open county, or in a town - towns of up to 20,000 population - to qualify for assistance.

More information may be obtained at the FmHA County Office located at No. 3 Colonial Plaza, US-90, Bay St. Louis or by calling 467-9008.

Jackson senator to chair Republican funding event

State Senator Con Maloney of Jackson will serve as dinner chairman of the 1980 United Republican Fund event, according to Mike Retzer, Mississippi Republican Party chairman.

Retzer said "Con Maloney represents the very vibrant leadership of elected Republicans in Mississippi. His leadership as Dinner Chairman will contribute greatly to the success of the event."

Maloney, who was elected to the State Senate in 1972, was reelected to his Jackson post without opposition last November. A former Democrat, he joined the Republican Party in March, 1978.

"With President Gerald Ford as our special guest," Maloney said, "the 1980 URF dinner will be one of our most successful events ever held."

The three-term senator is a businessman in Jackson. He attended Millsaps College. Maloney is active in various civic organizations including the Sertoma Club, the Better Business Bureau, and the Magnolia Speech School.

He and his wife, the former Betty Ann Prisk, have three sons. The Maloney family attends St. Richard's Catholic Church.

Cochran leads Connally's Mississippi campaign

Republican Presidential contender John B. Connally has named Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) chairman of the Connally for President Mississippi campaign committee.

"Thad Cochran is a leader of our party and of our nation. He is an effective and respected member of the United States Senate and a dedicated servant of the people of Mississippi. I am honored by his decision to serve as my Mississippi campaign chairman and I know he will do a first rate job," Connally said.

"John Connally started on a farm in south Texas and has proven himself an able, intelligent and decisive leader at all levels. The United States needs Connally leadership. He can best address the issues such as inflation and the economy, energy and foreign policy. John Connally is best equipped, through his knowledge and experience in state, national and international affairs to lead our Nation. I accept this position with pride and enthusiasm," Cochran said.

VA questions and answers

Q - I receive a pension from the Veterans Administration. Since I am over 65, I am automatically considered disabled. Does my age mean that I am also exempt from having to report income increases that might affect my pension?

A - No. Your pension is based on the amount of total income you receive and you must report increases. This is true even though you remain under the "old" law and do not receive an income questionnaire from VA upon having attained the age of 72.

Q - Can closing costs be included in the amount of money the government guarantees for a GI home loan?

A - No. All such costs must be paid in cash.

Q - I am a GI Bill student in need of some help from a tutor and I understand the Veterans Administration provides such help. Will these extra payments reduce the GI Bill time I have coming to me?

A - No. VA will pay up to $89 a month for tutoring, to a maximum amount of $820, with no charge against your basic entitlement to training.

Q - How long after the death of a veteran does a survivor have to request a burial allowance from the Veterans Administration?

A - The claim must be filed within two years after the veteran's permanent burial or cremation. This may be done at the nearest VA benefits office.

Rotary Foundation seeking scholars

Rotary International District Governor Powell G. Ogletree, whose jurisdiction includes Hancock County, has announced the availability of five Rotary Foundation educational awards for young people in his district for study abroad during academic year 1981-82. The awards cover the cost of language instruction, transportation, food, lodging and tuition.

Rotarians are looking for scholars who are well-rounded, articulate, outgoing people who can interpret their homelands as well as absorb the cultures of their country of study.

Candidates must apply for the awards by March, 1980 through local Rotary clubs where they reside or study.

The Rotary Foundation of Rotary International, the world's oldest service club association, seeks to promote international goodwill and understanding. Its awards programs are supported by voluntary contributions of Rotarians and others worldwide.

The Foundation's awards are placed into five categories, the largest of which is the graduate fellowships. Each graduate fellow must be 18 through 28 years old have earned the equivalent of a Bachelor's degree.

Students who have completed only two years of study on the university level may apply for the foundation's undergraduate scholarships. Applicants may not be married and must be 18 through 24 years old.

Technical Training awards are available to people who have the equivalent of a second grade education and have worked for two years in a technical field. In the past, students have studied vocations from beekeeping to hydrofoil construction. Technical training awardees must be twenty-one through thirty-five years old.

Also available are awards for teachers of the handicapped and for journalists which are granted to winners of a worldwide competition of candidates sponsored by Rotary clubs.

Teachers applying for this award must have the equivalent of a secondary school degree, have worked with the handicapped for two years and be twenty-five through fifty years old.

Applicants for journalism awards, if students, must have completed at least two years of post-secondary education in journalism. Professional applicants must have been working for two years and be 21 through 28 years old.

Over the next two years the Foundation's trustees have committed U.S. $30 million for their programs. And in concert with their motto of "Service Above Self," none of the program awards can be made to Rotarians or their families.

Applicants in Hancock County should contact Ellis Cuevas, Rotary Foundation chairman, Rotary Club of Bay St. Louis, phone 467-5473.

IRANIAN - U.S. DEPENDENCIES

If reason prevailed in restive Iran, the fateful standoff of that tiny arid anarchist country would have ended yesterday - or better, not even begun.

But hotheads are never real high on reason. Rather, they run full shod over key economic facts of life until they reach a dead end and oftentimes with disastrous consequences both for themselves and others.

And while the Carter Administration has apparently responded with a high degree of discretion in the handling of a ticklish situation, it is reassuring at this stage of the potentially deadly game of political diplomacy - of the lack of it to note something of the hand the President is playing out.

The cards count, and the U.S. does hold a high hand.

Before the President put a moratorium on Iranian oil purchases, we depended on that nation for about eight percent of our imported oil, while Iran ranked number five among ten oil exporting countries.

The United States imports almost half of all its petroleum with the largest share coming from Saudi Arabia, or about 20 percent. Nigeria is second largest U.S. supplier, providing about 15 percent. Next comes Libya with a bit over ten percent followed by Algeria with another ten percent. Indonesia and the United Arabes also provide six percent each.

The Mexicans are supplying five percent of our needs and that avenue is opening wider. Canada supplies three percent as do both Venezuela and Great Britain.

It is apparent that the U.S. is not economically vulnerable to Iran.

Now, let's put the shoe on the other foot.

U.S. sales to Iran for the current year to date total about 3.8 billion dollars, with food and feedstuffs accounting for 490 million dollars of that.

A year ago Iran bought over a million metric tons of wheat and during the past year has been trying to shift wheat purchases to other countries, primarily Australia - and this year bought only 816 thousand metric tons of wheat from us.

Earlier purchases of wheat from the U.S. amounted to 80 percent of their wheat supply.

Rice was the second largest commodity bought from us at the rate of 343,000 metric tons last year and 333,000 this year.

This was 75 percent of their rice paddy.

Corn and vegetable oils represented the remainder of Iran's more important agricultural purchases. The corn primarily was used for feeding their poultry flocks, and important meat supply for Iranians. Recently however feed shipments to that country were delayed and largely wiped out their poultry industry.

These economic facts constitute a bitter pill for the Iranians to swallow since much of the food they must have is simply unavailable except from the U.S.

That is why Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, responded to the standoff at the U.S. embassy in Iran by urging President Carter to use every possible moral and economic sanction to resolve the Iranian crisis including, if necessary, - the withholding of food commodities from Iran. Grant said the American Farm Bureau has a firm policy on world trade which states: "we favor the sale of American farm and industrial products in world markets wherever this will advance the best interest and security in the U.S."

In a recent public statement the Farm Bureau head said further: "We have extracted promises of 'no more food embargoes' from each Presidential candidate, including President Carter," which was in keeping with a long trend of American farm policy for isolationists and protectionists to champions of free trade as the world became smaller and more inter-dependent.

Correction

Lynette Prevou, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Prevou of Bay St. Louis, and Walter Allen Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Beck of Balsam, N.C., were married in sunset ceremonies Nov. 30 on a Gulfshore Baptist Assembly pier, Henderson Point, overlooking the Bay of St. Louis.

A headline in a previous edition of the Sea Coast Echo inadvertently reported the couple was married at Gulfside Assembly (a Methodist facility in Waveland).

The Echo regrets the error.

MEETING THE GAS SHORTAGE A LONG TRADITION OF SERVICE

United Gas has long tradition of meeting problems head-on.

And an even longer tradition of service to the Gulf South.

In the early 40's it pioneered new techniques in bringing gas transmission lines through marshes and across rivers and lakes. It laid down a vast delivery system that formed the base for the Gulf South's industrial expansion.

During the seventies, United Gas was affected by a shortage of natural gas on its system, just as were all major interstate pipelines in the United States. Despite United's on-going program to add new reserves to its system, the problem persisted throughout most of the decade.

Today, availability of natural gas is improving. More is coming ashore from the prolific Gulf. Future supplements to United's supplies lie in other areas of the lower 48 states and in Alaska, Canada and Mexico.

And just as important, because of Congressional action, producers of natural gas are now permitted to charge higher, market-oriented prices for gas delivered into interstate commerce. Because of this new incentive more gas is expected to be available to pipelines like United Gas.

The company's vast gas acquisition effort is another chapter in the story of its commitment to the Gulf South. Today this commitment is stronger than ever.
